Answered: 4 Skipped: 6

#	RESPONSES	DATE
1	From feedback I received on the day many participants felt like they were able to grasp the basic principles and had more confidence to carry out restoration work on their dams. Some of the more advanced participants I spoke with also said they found new information in the content provided. I did however not speak to all participants 1 on 1 following the event so I can't say that everyone felt this way.	7/7/2024 9:44 AM
2	They were very appreciative and some genuinely seemed to learn tips from the workshop	7/5/2024 6:16 PM
3	The participants gained a good understanding of the different planting levels of a dam. Plus how to select the grasses and trees to be used.	7/5/2024 6:10 PM
4	Understanding of key issues but will always have to adapt to their own current. Definitely inspiring though, and clear about the need to get good advice and plan, plan, plan	7/4/2024 3:00 PM

#	RESPONSES	DATE
1	Flexibility was a key ingredient for this event to work with severe weather impacting the original date and minor changes to the original run sheet taking place. Open and clear communication is always important and can make or break an event like this. I can't speak fully to teh BCT-LI Codesign but for my own codesign experience with LI for this event having a dedicated point of contact and opportunities to discuss what each party hopes to achieve from the event was crucial. Also the ability to run ideas past each other and feel comfortable giving an receiving honest feedback was essential.	7/7/2024 9:44 AM
2	If codesign means setting topics for the events they did that. We'd like technical information and expertise please	7/5/2024 6:16 PM
3	No co- designing took place. Until a email from Jodie a few weeks before event.	7/5/2024 6:10 PM
